FLAT FURNITURE

NOT literally flat, as all the pieces are gems of carving skill, but furniture especially suited to flats. We don't mean by that you can't use this kind anywhere but in a flat -for it makes any home much hand-somer-but the kind that seems to suit a flat a little better than the ordinary kinds. Every piece is of dainty con-struction, though durable, so that it makes a small room appear much roomier. Our assortment of this style of furniture is a most complete one, much larger than you'll find hereabouts, for we made a special feature of this in our buying for the season at hand. As a special inducement for your coming to look at our showing we make these special prices for this week—

THE THEATERS.

At the Theaters To-Day. ENGLISH'S-"The Burgomaster." 8:15 GRAND-Vaudeville, 2:15 and 8:15 p. m. PARK-"Superba," 2 and 8 p. m. EMPIRE-American Burlesquers, 2 and

"The Burgomaster" at English's. "The Burgomaster" is an old story, but has some new and capable tellers at Enga bit more smartly now than ever before. Fred Lennox is as good a Burgomaster as Gus Weinberg, Knox Wilson or Richard Carle, and F. R. Runnels is an active Doodle. Oscar Figman is the cleverest comedian in the assortment, and he is especially well fitted for the role of the attenuated tragedian with the name of Indiana literary significance, E. Booth Talkington.

as the Irish saloon keeper in the prologue and the clown in Talkington's freak-show. Miss Ursula March is a sprightly roof-gar-den girl, leads the chorus and is a grace-ful dancer. Miss Jennie Weathersby bur-lesques the theosophist cleverly and Miss Isabelie Underwood and Miss Emille Gardner as Willie Vanastorbilt and the girl from Chicago are a vivacious pair.

Wit and melody have not yet made their homes in Chicago, and no doubt it will be long before that corn and pork center produces a musical comedy that will stand favorable comparison with the best brand made in London and New York, but "The Burgomaster" is not unworthy entertain-ment for State fair week, when the theament for State fair week, when the theaters especially wish to please the uncritical folk from the countryside. Mr. Pixley's libretto will not puzzle them by too delicate humor and Mr. Luders's music will not lose them in complex harmonies. The plot is simple, but full of adventure. The Burgomaster of New Amsterdam and his secretary find themselves facing demands made by the Swedes, the English and the Indians and to escape their troubles they drink ans, and to escape their troubles they drink a potion that puts them to sleep for 250 years. Dug out of Broadway by a street-repair gang, they meet a lot of persons typical of a civilization as strange to them as if it were the moon's. There are many songs in "The Burgomaster," but they are all of the original score. The male chorus comes out well in the "Dear Old College Days" chorale, but is hardly strong enough for the Indian's chorus in the first act, which is a really inspiriting bit of composition. A cake walk at the end of the last act is worked up elaborately, and it has a handsome setting. There will be matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Vaudeville at the Grand. Two new Europeaan acts are on view at the Grand Opera House as features of the bill of vaudeville. The Riccobono brothers show trained horses and dogs and their work is all new and interesting. The horses, three of them, are handsome ani-mals. One of them takes off clothing and mals. One of them takes off clothing and goes to bed, another plays ball with its hind feet and all three go through similarly clever maneuvers. One of the Riccobonos is effectively costumed as an Arab and the other, personating accurately a street poultry peddler, has a lot of tricks that are both queer and comic in America. The act goes with French smartness and this is one of the virtues of the work of the is one of the virtues of the work of the four Martinettis, acrobats, who form the second importation. Their head and hand balancing is remarkable for difficult work gracefully and quickly done. O. K. Sato, a juggler and comedian that has been in the vaudeville theaters for a long time, keeps his audiences laughing continuously. He has a grotesque make-up and a routine of original nonsense. His juggling tricks are few, but they are well done. Miss Remington, of the team of Hines and Remington, also deals in fun talk, caricaturing individuals and types and doing it with refreshing vigor and humor. when she leaves him alone on the stage the sketch and his material is not old. Nell Litchfield and Mrs. Litchfield have a rural sketch in which Litchfield is a down East farmer and also the farmer's woodenheaded son. He has two good songs and Mrs. Litchfield plays the violin acceptably, though without style. Style, too, is what James H. Cullen lacks. He has an unusual number of parodles and a bookful of jokes. Some are old, some are new, some bright and some vulgar, but they are not put together well. As it is, however, Cullen gets a great deal of applause and very apparently is a valuable contributor. The Columbian trio consists in a man and two little girls. The man is strong enough and clever enough to support the children without their ruining their voices early in life, but he seems to prefer to let them work out their ability now. Both the children sing off the key and their voices break painfully. One of them does the familiar wax doll imitation, and also tries to play the plano, but she has not enough power to make the harmonies and put them over the footlights. Dressed in elaborate white satin costumes, the man and his little assistants have a song and dance feature that pleases immensely the un-thinking majority, but the whole act is pathetic and exasperating.

"Superba" at the Park.

Hanlon's "Superba," with its dazzling scenic effects and bewildering mechanical illusions, began its fair week engagement at the Park last evening. In the main the show is the same as at former presentations, although to keep pace with the times, a few new features are introduced. Several new dances are put on that are pleasing. The costuming of the show is admirable. Robert Rosair is sufficiently active to be a good Pierrot and submits to the rather terrifying demands made upon his agility with the requisite amount of smiling sang-froid. Violet V. Holmes is a good-looking Superba. George Hanlon, as the king, and John H. Haslam as the queen burlesque, Edward and Alexandria crudely. The others of the cast hop-skip-and-jump through the rush with varying degrees of ability. A rather clever burlesque on Andrew Carnegle makes fun in the second act. W. J. Hoyt, as "the royal librarian," has some lines that are generally funny. Carnegie entertains the king in his palace, where mystifying things occur. "I would not have had that happen for a dozen libraries!" said Carnegie after a cleverly executed mechanical surprise. The coronation was burlesqued with a lot of rough horse-play and hurly-burly.

One of the prettlest features of "Super-ba" are the dances. The dance of the Indian girls in the first act is harmonious to the eye and ear. The costuming is tasteful and frankly barbaric. The girls are pretty and well-trained. Another ballet in the same act is "The Girls From Over There," and is well executed. In the third act is the ballet of soldiers, also well-cos-tumed and danced. In the third act the "Bachelor Girls" go through their evolu-tions with grace. The fun of the piece lies almost entirely in the remarkable adventures of Pierrot in many lands with all sorts of people. The mechanical devices used to keep the fun at riot pitch are, as former years, revelations of ingenuity

Variety at the Empire.

The Vedmars, a man and a woman with W. B. Watson's American Burlesquers, who opened the week yesterday at the Empire Theater, have an acrobatic comedy act that entities them to be featured. The male Vedmar does some talking, but it is of such a nature that it does not fail to arouse laughter. Vedmar appears on the stage dressed in a grotesque costume. He is assisted in his work by a young woman of good sense, as she does not indulge in any attempts at comedy. She leaves this to the other half of the sketch, who does not overdo his opportunities. The couple do their work on a horizontal bar. The young woman shows the same agility on the bars as the man. In addition to the Vedmars, Watson's opening burlesque, "Levi in Japan," is good. It has been put on in a pretentious manner. The piece tells of the troubles of a Jew who goes to Watson, of course, impersonates the Jew. He carries the same amount of funny sayings without the use of any suggestiveness. The lack of this particular feature of his former burlesque shows is a noticeable feature.

In the olio the management would do well to provide Selbini, a juggler, with an interior setting. As he played yesterday in a woodland scene his act looked bare, although he does some very clever work in juggling and riding a bicycle. Selbini's act would also go better if he would not use the property man as a comedian. property man, from the way he handles himself on the stage, would be better working in a wholesale house, doing the heavy work. Selbini will do well to elimi-

The two Batchellor sisters head the olio and still retain their musical act. They are followed by Hayman and Hayman in their own parodies. John West and John Williams have not changed their work in one line. They still cling to the "he bird and the she bird story" that has gone the rounds of all variety houses and has grown threadbare. They should get a new line of talk. Watson closes the show with his oldtime afterpiece, "Krausmeier's Alley."

"There Is Many a Slip" Presented. NEW YORK, Sept. 15 .- Another English play met with approval at the Garrick Theater to-night, which opened its fifth season under Charles Frohman's manage-"The Royal Family" and "The Second in Command," is also the author of "There is Many a Slip," which was given its first American presentation. Miss Jessie Millward took the leading female role, and increased her artistic favor. Considerable interest was displayed in the acting of James Frakine, who took the leading male role, and who is Lord Roslyn. Leo Dietrichstein had the comedy role and Beatrice Orwin made a pleasant impression on this, her first appearance in

"FRUIT OF THE LOOM." Men and women of taste and judgment go into ecstacies over the wonderful patterns, textures and colors which are "the fruit of the loom." But there is one fruit of the loom they rarely consider, and that is the frail and faded woman, old before conditions, which send her more favored sister to bed and the doctor's care. The diseases which weaken and torment women. may in almost all cases be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weak-

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 828 East College Street, Jacksonville, Ills. "Words cannot express what I suffered. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none. Friends urged me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. Now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain brearing-down pain, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain-do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription " whenever a laxative is required.
